ADDENDUM #1 Q&A

1. What is the current Revolving Loan Fund Program? What is the number of active loans? How long has it been active? What is the dollar amount under management for the loan fund?
 - Established under the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) in 2013, the Revolving Loan Fund (RLF) Program offers low-interest loans for the installation of energy efficiency and renewable energy measures that help decrease energy costs, increase energy savings, and improve environmental performance. There is one active loan in the fund. The current dollar amount under management for the loan fund is approximately $9.0M.
2. It appears that the non-profit Energize Delaware has a very active energy efficiency loan program for both commercial and residential properties. How does the existing DCCE loan program compare to the Energize Delaware loan program?
 - The DCCE RLF Program is not associated with Energize Delaware. Therefore, we do not have any point of comparison.
3. What is the objective of the current and forthcoming RLF Program?
 - Both RLF Programs aim to offer low-interest loans for the installation of energy efficiency and renewable energy measures to qualifying borrowers. In addition to loans for EE/RE retrofits, the forthcoming program will also offer loans for energy audits. As stated in the Scope of Work, DCCE seeks to maximize loan distribution for both programs, while also developing a robust contractor network that will aid in effectively communicating program details to prospective customers.

All other terms and conditions remain the same.
